Nena,

You have travelled boldly where others feared to go. Because you have, many others will find it easier to travel along routes that have made women leaders; that have given hope to so many affected by AIDS; and that have taken people of diverse cultures to unexpected destinations.

Now, you tell us that you are travelling towards new horizons where opportunities abound for those who are ready to explore the infinite possibilities of life on a great planet.

What's more, you are willing to take passengers with you on a wellness journey that challenges so many assumptions about conventional medicine and that provides hope for people who have so often been told that nothing can be done for them.

We are inspired by both your past achievements and your plans for the future— and we are very happy to be part of the journey that you have created at www.NenaNera.com.
